How to root mother in law tongue. How to propagate mother-in-law tongue from cutting. Can you root mother-in-law tongue. Can you propagate mother in law's tongue. How to propagate mother in law tongue in water.

Below are my care and propagation tips for the mother-in-law tongue together with my photos! Mother-in-Law language plant Christin photograph What is mother tongue in Law (Snake Plant)? The language of the mother-in-law (Sansevieria trifasciata) is a very popular home plant that comes from West Africa. It goes from names like Viper's hemp, Sword of San Giorgio, or snake plant, but do not confuse with NassiaVia SERPENS. This beautiful evergreen has long, rigid and vertical leaves that are dark green with amazing bright-green bands. Benefits of the plant can be kept outdoors in hot climates, or if you live in a more cold part of the world, it can be an internal plant. It is very tolerant at low levels of light, but equally happy in the light of the sun. It does not require frequent watercurs. It absorbs toxins, such as nitrogen oxides, and is excellent for improving internal air quality. It doesn't require much maintenance and grows quite quickly, so beginners can work with it easily. From time to time sprouting small white flowers, usually when he is a few years old. How wonderful! Find out how to divide and repot your snake plant, and get advice on taking care of it to make your growing efforts a success! Facts about the mother-in-law's tongue tonguecon namessnake plant, hemp viper's bowstring, sword of san giorgioscientific namesansevieria trifasciataheight up to 40 inch lightbright, indirect light (some direct lights are ok) wateronce a month; Keep the soil dry air temperature60 ° at 80 ° F (16th at 27A ° C) prefers hot temperatures Draining terrain without solarFerTilizer does not require it. For rapid growth, fertilize once in spring and once in summer. PestStungus GnatstoxicityToxicity toxic to dogs and Gaster-in-Law's tongue plant in large pots Christin photography How to cure a snake plant The best way to take care of this plant is to ignore it most of the time. It seems to prosper on negligence. With this said, however, here are nursing instructions ideal for the meticulous gardener. How often should water? Irrigation once a month is better. As the mother-in-law tongue has succulent leaves, falls into the category of plants that can be left alone without too much water. Err on the side of the subirrigation or irrigation only when the soil is dry to the touch. Constantly water this plant will march the roots and finally kill it. It is much easier to bring a dry plant of a plant too watered to life. How the sun needs? This plant loves spacious sunlight! Put it near a window to give it shiny, indirect sunlight. This plant can also tolerate direct sunlight, but not for a prolonged period of time or otherwise the leaves will burn. The language of can also tolerate poor lighting conditions, but growth can slow down or leaves can become yellow. What is the best temperature for a snake plant? This plant is resistant, so even if it prefers warm and warm temperatures, it can tolerate anything between 50° to 100°F (10° to 38°C), you can see some wilting orin colder temperatures. What kind of land is better? Since this plant is susceptible to root rot if over watery, I recommend a fast drawing ground. You can use a mixture of potting soil and cactus mixture. Do you need fertilizer? You can skip the fertilizer, but if you want the plant to grow a little faster, fertilize during its growth season: once during the spring and once during the summer—no more than this! Do I have to scare him? If one of the leaves gets cuts, scraps or unpleasant signs, you should potate cutting the leaf as close as possible to the surface of the soil. You want to get rid of the whole leaf rather than simply cut a section of it because get rid of the damaged tissue, the plant should not support. Plus, it looks more aesthetic like that. What is the ideal humidity level? The tongue of the mother-in-law does not lie dry air, but prefers moisture. This makes it a large bathroom plant, but you can place it anywhere. It's so versatile! Share your mother's language plant in Christin4 Ways to Propagate Mother-in-Law language This plant is easy to propagate when it becomes too large for pot.1. Dividing or DivisionRemove the plant from the pot. Take a knife and cut the roots to separate the stems. Place the new stems in their own pots and cover the roots with the soil. Corn with water. 2. From RhizomesRemove the pot-based plant. Take off the dirt. You will probably discover the young buds (rhizomes) hidden under the earth. Pull the sprouts apart from the roots, and don't worry about being crude with them. I haven't killed anyone yet! You can also cut them with a knife. Depending on how big your plant is and how many new pots you want, you may want to do one of the two things: plant each individual rhizome in a separate dish or plant some of the largest in a large pot together. I did both because I like some on the floor and the smaller ones on the leds of the window. 3. Cut a leaf as close to the base of the plant as possible. Put it in a fresh pan and in water. 4. In WaterCut a leaf turned off as close to the base of the plant as possible. Put it in a water pot and change it every few days. Once it begins to develop roots, attack it in a fresh soil pot. Mother-in-Law language plant in small pots Photography of Christin Grow quickly! These plants grow very quickly when they are happy. I had to throw some away in the past, because I had no room for everyone. The Mix cactus is a DIY mix or bought store? What relationship / ingredients are they? Thank you for taking the time to reply. ALLYSUT63 on July 23, 2020: I have a plant that has been told was called a mother in the language of the laws, but it doesn't seem seems like photos of mlt. She is 35 years old and grows horizontally for several years. He has pointed points so we assume it's a cactus, but I might be wrong. Is there a place where I can send a photo for advice? ThanksCyndy langridge on July 18, 2020:I have a similar plant but does not have the variegated design, but a more solid green plant; although the shape and behavior are the same, up to some occasional white flower. is common for having solid color sheets? N tranter on 08, July 2020: fabulous place and advice, well done. Ann-Christin (author) from the kingdom joined on May 15, 2020:Yes, I would remove the dead stems.Lynn jo bishop on May 14, 2020: My myth recently bloomed seemed great, in repotting remove the dead stems of the flower or notAnn-Christin (author) from the kingdom united on 23 April 2020: Maybe it became too high for the plate where it is located you could try to put some bets and tie it to stop the bending. It's an old plant, so maybe it's coming to the end of his life. Lesley Stewart on April 23, 2020:I have a problem with my hard mother-in-law, she bends and flopping she is tall enough had her since 1995, she has had a lot of plants of her, please you can advise me what to do. Linda on March 26, 2020: I always smile when I remember when I was a child that learned that my mother's plant was called the language of her mother-in-law. I didn't remember it, so I always called it. "The speeches of the grandmother." probably 40+ years ago. I gave a plant to every mother and mother-in-law for the Mother's Day. I still plant my mother and is special for me.Cane on January 23, 2020: She was these many years ago. We called her snake plants. Ann-Christin (author) from the United Kingdom on 06 January 2020: I do mine in spring and summer, when the plant began to grow again. AngeJ$ on December 30, 2019:Hello are a total novice of gardening / plants, my mother-in-law language is beginning to look like a big tip for it is pot but looks like it is blooming, is there a better time of year to propagate them? Ann-Christin (author) from the United Kingdom on 02 November 2019: It can be a parasite called thrips that invaded your plant, the best thing to do would be to remove all curled sheets and clean down the remaining sheets with a damp cloth or cotton wool. Also make sure it is not close to other plants as it can spread. Winniewi on 30 October 2019: Why are the leaves on my plant starting to curl? Ann-Christin (author) from the United Kingdom on 26 October 2019: Hi usually when the leaves begin falling the sheets which have been over watered, try not to water for an instant and see what happens even if if the roots are damaged I am afraid that the plant is lost as I know from experience. Diane vennard on October 25, 2019:Hello, what does it mean when the leaves begin to fall? asto stop him from doing this or how I can take them straight. Thank you.dian polte on October 16, 2019:I can leave out the doors on the covered porch during the winter. Sometimes we have a strong frost in NC Piemonte. Will the plant survive if it's covered? Ann-Christin (author) from da daOctober 13, 2019: Planting them a little deeper would help and maybe cover the ground with some pebbles for weight down. Jemsw on October 10, 2019: I've had my plant for years - actually now I have 4 - & never bothered to find out how to take care of it/them. They seem very accommodating - forgive any rounds and inattention, on my part (Health issues have limited the amount of care I can provide. I think I've done things just most of the time (I keep them on my feet in summer, lots of light - no direct sun). They express their happiness with the display of enchanting white flowers. One thing I didn't do is remove any damaged leaves. I'll be happy to remove them - I didn't want to do it just because it was aesthetically pleasing if it was harmful to the plant. They will be very pleased - always like watching their best! I have a problem right now. After separating and repotting one of the plants - the leaves being very long and heavy it seems that they can tilt so much it lifts to roots out of the pot. I used a pole to support the leaves, but I'd like to find a better solution. I planted the rhizomes at the same depth they were before, but I wonder if they should be deeper - they were rather tied to the pot at the time. Any thought, suggestions are thankful. Erica on September 21, 2019: Thank you for this very useful information. My mother had a very large and tall plant of mother-in-law Tongue when she was killed with my father in a car accident when I was 4 years old and my siblings were 10 and 12. I always wanted to get a nice plant. I found one at a sidewalk sale about 10 days ago and he was thrilled to find it. I heard I needed all the information in this article. I know I'll be back here often when I have questions. Thanks so much! Suzy on September 14, 2019: Hello, what kind of soil is best to use for snake plants in a pot? Darren on June 2, 2019: Rather than separate it, it is ok to leave it and repot the whole plant, as its large and looks very impressive as is Ann-Christin (author) from the UK on April 16, 2019: Everything depends on the size of the plant. If it is small use a small dish and replace it with a larger one as it grows. BM April 10, 2019: Pls suggest the ideal pot size for these plants. Jackie on April 04, 2019: My leaves don't stand up straight but break. What's the problem? Julia on March 12, 2019: My mother is almost 50 years old. They're my grandmother's aunts, and I moved on to my grandmother, and now I've moved on to me Its longest leaf is 52 inches tall. I came to your beautiful view to find out how to take care of it. I was so scared, he was gonna kill her because I don't have much of a green thumb, but it looks like these plants are pretty hard. I think we're going to be great.
