Discord Price: free / $ 9.99 per month / $ 99.99 Discord is easily among the best Messenger apps for players. It is equipped with a multi-platform support between most mobile phone and computer operating systems. There is also a web client for those platforms without a native app. The app also presents voice chat, multiple text chat, GIF support and more. People on the service can create your own servers or join others as they need. It is mainly for games. However, some people use it only for its fantastic organizational system and the average of the average voice chat capacities. The service is free to use for everyone. However, you can unlock some extra cosmetics with the subscription of the Nitro discord. See also: Å, loose vs discord: what is best for you? Facebook Messenger (Lite) Price: FreeJoe Hindy / Android AuthorityFacebook Messenger is among the most popular messenger apps. Facebook has two chat apps for this. The normal includes all functionalities such as chat heads, stickers and other features. The Lite version is only a base chat application with much less frills. Those strongly invested in Facebook's Messenger experience may want regular app. However, those who don't want to face the Facebook absurdity should use the Lite version. Facebook eventually introduces ads to these chat apps. However, they are otherwise free to use. Facebook has had some security problems at the beginning of 2018. We do not imagine that the Social Network became irrelevant because of what, though. Many people will still use Facebook. It looks extremely clean and professional. Groups can create channels, conduct voice calls and more. The app also presents support for third-party apps such as Giphy, Google Drive, Asana and other funny or productive tools. Users can also join more loose servers. It's a bit like a professional professional of discord, honestly. Like the discord, it is also completely free without in-app purchases. Those with larger teams that need more functionality can pay an optional subscription fee for extra things. See also: Å, How to use the slow productivity and teamwork View more: Skype Price: Free with purchase in-AppSkype is one of the most recognizable messenger apps ever. Everyone knows what Skype is and what concerns. You can write the chat, the video call and the voice call for the call of other members. You can even call people on a real phone number with a nominal fee. The app includes some extra features that may or may not be useful. It depends on what you need. However, this has excellent complete multi-platform support, support for more chat and support for most types of files, including documents, gifs and other things. It's a solid rock option and there is a lite version if you like Skype but does not require all the features. See also: Å, zoom vs. Skype: What is the best for your video calls? Snapchat Price: FreeSnapchat is one of the app in more unique messenger. Supports some things, including voice calls, video messages, photo messages and text messages. The service deletes messages after viewing. This means that there is no story to speak outside a strip of the strip. There are also snapchat stories. This allows people to send proverbial status updates that all their followers can view. They expire in 24 hours. Many of the features of the app are imitated by other apps (Instagram, mostly). However, Snapchat is still quite popular among younger people and is certainly something different. See also: Å, the best apps like snapchat for Android Telegram Price: FreeTelegram is among the most popular messenger apps for privacy. It boasts a 256-bit symmetrical aes encryption, 2048 bit RSA encryption and more. This makes it among the most secure messaging services outside. The app also has file sharing, multi-platform support, group chats, GIF support and more. It is considered one of the best platforms for security and it is quite private that some governments do not like their citizens. As a chat service, it is definitely more than quite good for almost everything you need. See also: Å, whatsapp vs telegram vs signal: which messaging app should use? Viber Messenger Price: Free with in-Appviber purchases is not great in some parts of the world. However, they are among the most popular messenger apps ever. It boasts a complete experience, including messages, calls, a self-destruction chat, group chat, video messages, video chat and more. It also includes some extras as adhesives, news all over the world and more. Most adhesive packages cost extra, so in-app purchases. This is actually a fairly rounded chat experience. However, it's a bit heavier than most chat apps. Those who want a detergent, a minimal experience can want to avoid this. Furthermore, this sees most of its countries' popularity outside the United States. This is not a big problem, but only a stubhorn. Whatsapp Price: FreeJoe Hindy / Android Authority Everybody knows whatsapp. It is the world's most popular messenger app. after all. It has a lot of functionality, it gets frequent updates and positively competes with fundamentally any other chat app. Includes voice chats and videos, text messages, group chats, support for most multimedia formats such as gifs, videos, etc. And more. It is powerful, accessible and popular. This is the saint Triumvirate for chat apps. It is also free without in-app purchases. We have social messengers, secret messengers, professional messengers and food messengers, so it can be being being To settle up on which services your time apply. If you need a little help to decide what to use to ask your friends if they are free for coffee or ranting with GIF on the last episode of your favorite show, here are our favorites. With the exception of some of the best Android phones, Google messages have become the default SMS app on Android. This is for a good reason as it is also the best messaging app that can handle text messages now that the function has been deprecated by Google Hankouts. Telegram lets you create a robust community, or simply stick to singular conversations. But the power of the app is obvious when you start navigating the different settings and functionality offers. Using whatsapp was a mixed bag, with many privacy concerns thanks to how Facebook property is. Some of those questions have been remedied, and remains one of the most popular messaging apps around the world. 1. Google Messages Source: Jeramy Johnson / Android Central If you are just trying to send text to your friends or want to have a complete conversation, Google messages are probably the place you will start. The messages have greatly improved over the years, and while it is still as big as the day of the hirena of the finds, it is approaching. RCS functionalities have been added, creating more an experience you would find with some of the other apps on this list. Perhaps the best reason for using Google messages is that it does not require any finesse or convincing for your friends to use. We all know how frustrating and difficult it can be to get our friends and family to move to a new platform, but with messages you don't have to go to that path. Just use it and the messages only works. The app is free and already pre-installed on your phone, and more likely, it's already in your pier. Outside of RCS features, you also have the opportunity to send and receive messages from your desktop browser. In this way you don't always have to keep looking at your phone during the day. With the addition of RCS functionality, messages can serve more as a chat application. You will be able to send or receive messages wherever you are while you get the most from what Google offers from your SMS app. You can even send standard chat or sms into your favorite browser so you can continue to chat without your head buried in your phone. Source: Jeramy Johnson / Android Central Telegram is one of those funny applications offering a slew of great chat features, along with others that you may not even know. You can use it to create enormous communities of people who think about this mentality itself, or simply stick to sending messages with some friends who have taken the jump from something else. There are fun functions that include the possibility of creating custom stick packs, such as the mermobile package that created the former Husman of the Central Writer of Android Hayato. It is easy to use the telegram on any device you have, regardless of whether you have just grasped the new iPad Pro or is trying to collect one of the best Chromebooks. You can keep up with those group chats from where you are, or you die if your friends are simply flying out of the tracks of a Friday afternoon. Telegram is not the best chat app out, nor is the most private messaging app, but it is much better than others that you could find yourself using on a regular basis. Provides a great balance of everything you need, along with some features you may not, and others that you will be aware and love. The telegram seems to be one of the fastest growing messaging platforms, thanks to its versatility. You can create groups with a Of 200,000 members and quickly share documents and other files. Also, the app is super-fast, and you don't have to worry about paying anything to get additional features. Source: Harish Jonnaalagadda / Android Central When you look at the most popular messaging apps around the world (and among the writers here at Android Central, whatsapp is almost always a a Upper part of the list. The app is probably the largest competition for Message simply due to the enormous user base. However, the problem is that since Facebook is the property, there are more than some privacy concerns. Facebook and whatsapp have sung to solve those problems, essentially putting it up at the top for people to use. As for the features, you can use whatsapp to make phone calls even if you do not have a stable connection, along with the possibility of having fun and use the sympathies adhesive and mini-app integrated into the main app. WhatsApp has even lost to integrate the specific characteristics of the country, such as the ability to use Indian Upi infrastructure for payments. Being able to quickly send money to your friend for a movie ticket without having to interrupt the conversation or switch to another app is just a reason why whatsapp is as popular as it is. Whatsapp is one of the most popular messengers in the world, with encrypted multimedia chats, VoIP voices and video calls and a fall installation. We liked more WhatsApp before it was purchased by Facebook, but the service itself is still decent, widely used, and in many places it is more reliable than SMS. Although they do not cease enough in our first three, here is the best of the rest when it comes to Android messaging apps. Facebook Messenger Source: Joe Maring / Android Central For a better or worse, Facebook Messenger continues to grow in popularity. The biggest reason for this is because almost all those you know have a Facebook account. There are some who have tried and successfully left the platform, but it is not possible only for others, especially if you use Messenger to stay in touch with friends and family. The new features have continuously been added to the messaging platform, including the possibility of sending payments, playing with a group of friends and have a group video chat. There is also a "lite" version available for those who do not want all bells and whistles or have internet connectivity problems. Facebook has done some rather despicable things in recent years, but Facebook Messenger continues to be one of the most used messenger apps around the simple value of all and its grandmother having a Facebook account. Source: Harish Jonnaalagadda / Android Central If you are tired of worrying your messages that remain private, then there is no better signal option. The company offers end-to-end encryption for all your messages and shares specific reasons for the reason why your data could end up being shared. But none of these reasons is to sell your data and are more in line with the local order forces or if you stop service terms. The signal ui can seem a little familiar if you passed at any time with the telegram. It offers a simplistic interface while providing some different options to change the appearance, view any connected device and more. It is also super easy to use as uses the existing phone number. The biggest problem for the signal is the lack of a Web or Chrome app, so if you want to use this on your computer, you may come across some problems. However, if privacy is the name of the game, the signal should be your weapon of choice. The signal was one of the most confident secure messaging systems on the block for years. It is absolutely free and use the end-to-end encryption protocol to ensure your privacy with every message you send. Source: Android Central Discord started as a funny messaging platform designed with players in mind, but since then it has become what From a game when this app is released. There are a multitude of additions and robots that can be added to the community chats, which are super easy to configure. But with its nucleus, the discord facilitates shooting from any platform and start messages with your friends. It even makes a wonderful option if you want to have a group voice chat while you are playing the latest PS5 multiplayer games. Discord is part of it Chat, finger of part messages and everything is outstanding. It is addressed to other groups chatting with respect to the individual conversations, but it is available on any platform you can think, and it is easy to manage, share and moderate. Its gamer-centric goal has made a very and very reactive service that is fast to update and expand. Source: Ara Wagoner / Android Central at a certain point, it seemed that you would start turning into the messaging app that everyone has been defeated. However, over the years it has grown and expanded into a platform that turns more to companies. It is our primary source of communication here at Android Central and offers a wide range of functionality to simplify messaging colleagues. You can integrate apps like Google Drive, Asana and others to keep up with activities or share documents. You can even have a little fun and create custom emoji that also serve as messages. The loose is a large app with wonderful custom notification settings and allows you to skip and messages in a colleague or two when you need. We used the game for our in-chat company all the time I worked at Android Central. I was shocked to know that the game was available for regular users next to his business use! If you just want to train your classmates with some gifs you choose or you have to talk to your head of your program, the game is incredible. Source: Hayato Huseman / Android Central While Tiktok continues to take over the world, Snapchat is still one of the best social media apps on mobile today. No, you won't be able to take a conversation on the web or take things from anywhere else, but this is a bit the point. Snapchat should be fun while allowing self-canceling photos. So you can send images or videos without being shameful. Being able to share clips from your daily life with friends and even the family is always fun, and snapchat makes it easy. He throws over one of those goofy filters and illuminate your friends' day, or simply send them a video message to let him know that you are thinking of them. Snapchat could be better classified as a social media network. However, Snapchat is based around messaging, and millions fell in love with his self-elimination of photos and his ease of use as a way to sweep away frenemies, send images / videos that you don't want to spread around the school. And of course his many selfie filters. Source: Ara Wagoner / Android Central Google Hangouts is the only app that many of us had not been set on the road. It hasn't been completely deprecated yet, but it's definitely on the road to Google Groveyard. The reliefs were divided into two separate apps with Google Chat that manages your messages and Google encounter the care of video calls and meetings. For now, findings are still alive and kicks, but Google has migrated customers to chat and meet in the last two years. Honestly, part of the reason why we did not see the end of the finds as we know that it is because it is used by companies that use the Suite services at a cost. But in the end those will also be integrated into the chat and meet and will be the final nail in the coffin for the messaging app once loved. The relationships of imminent "death" meetings are very exaggerated. While the classic Hangouts app could be the sunset in a few years, the Hangouts service will continue with Hangouts meetings and meeting meetings, the latter you liked for our team meetings for months. Source: Haisih Jonnaalagadda / Android Central Even though everything you intend to do on your messaging service is talking to some friends and maybe plan Heists Jewelry ... I mean surprise parties - you should worry about your messaging service is safe and reliable. All services here support two-factor authentication and many of them support encryption for messages, including WhatsApp, signal and snapchat. Self-deletion messages and notifications when messages are screenshots or recharges DA snapchat some some Safety aspect. However, there are ways around those protocols and snapchats have had self-elimination problems of photos that are not deleted from their first servers. On the other hand, the possibility of eliminating specific messages permanently from a group chat is a nice feature on the signal I would like to get more services. However, at least services like WhatsApp having the ability to insert a message a few minutes after an accidental send is beautiful. How many friends can you get to change? The problem with the collection of a messenger app is that you don't usually just use one. Some friends will be on Facebook, some will be on whatsapp, and there is a strange that still uses the findings (my family still uses the findings almost every day for our group chats). You can try to drive your friends to a platform or another, but remember that you may need to compromise and choose a platform that your friends already use. There is a good reason whySApp takes the crown to be our favorite. It is still widely used to the point that some friends and family could use it. You won't have to worry about creating user names as this works from your phone number and you can easily import contacts. Then, create group chatter or video calls to stay in touch with everyone. Perhaps the most common choice will end up being Facebook Messenger as almost all and their brother has already a Facebook account. You can have group video calls with up to eight people, use messenger as a sms app, and even send money back and forth if necessary. Facebook also made sure that you can play some games in the app with your friends to maintain a type of competition to trigger some fantastic disconnects of garbage. speak.
