Nothing on earth can make you feel less than realizing that there is a whole universe outside. Possibly even only one of the many universes full of galaxis and planetary systems like our solar system. But exactly what is the solar system? What is compound and how and why are we a part so insignificant? In addition, is a plutkey really considered a new planet or not? Our solar system is the group of planets that orbit the sun that big, round and brilliant thing we see in the sky that seems to move around us every day? In fact, we are moving it right next to our eight - or nine years, depending on where you are with Pluto - Planetries brothers and everthing that comes with them. The solar system is also billions and years of age; older than dinosaurs and thrones.Did game that you know? There are a lot of fun ways to remember the names and order of the planets. Just make a sentence Mnemåonica! Experience this: My very easy METHER accelerates the name of planets. Adventtr / Getty Images Mercury is the planet in the solar system that is closer to the sun. Except for the plutkey, which is a dwarf planet, it is also the smallest of the set. Named after the Messenger God Roman, Mercurio, you may have seen or heard people mention Mercury to be in retrograde. Or, like another variant, blame her for things going on around them. When the mercedrium moves in retrograde, this means that the planet seems to be moving back. This is really just an illusion for those of us on earth. 3quarks / Getty Images VÅnus is the planet situated between mercory and land. His name comes from the Roman goddess of love and is quite special that we can see this very clearly from Earth in certain parts of the year. You also do not need a telescope to do so. In the sky, VÅnus seems to be the second brighter object of the sky after the moon. So, what big, bright star sometimes you see up there? It is not a UFO; It's Vanus. Manjik / Getty Images Although we know more than we need to know about Earth, it is our planet and everything, there are still many questions not answered. How, why is the Earth the only planet that did not name t after a god? Given particularly that it is the only planet in our solar system that, as much as we know, also houses life. By the contrary, however, there were many gods named after that. Earth is believed to be about 4.5 billion years. In fact, the whole solar system is of the same age. Aleksandargeorgiev / Getty Images Mars is one of the only other planets in the solar system we can explore. As one of the most studied agricultural in the sky, we have been able to learn about your climate now and in the past. Just as this, it also were made along with the existence of volcanies already extinguished, deserts and polar calabas even. The red planet has two moons and could one day be really capable of sheltering life. Manjik / Getty Images JÅpiter is the largest of the planets of the solar system. In fact, it's so great that it's twice as big as all other planets combined. Although we still have to explore JÅpiter, we are doing this at the moment with a probe called Juno, who is investigating this unknown landscape. The big red dot on the planet's surface is a giant storm that is going on for hundreds of years. More than more, it has more than 75 moons. How is this for a Star Wars plot? 3quarks / Getty Images One of the most recognizable planets, Saturn is usually the image you draw when we are thinking of space. Adorned with beautiful Ananis, Saturn is, next to his neighbor JÅpiter, mainly composed of hydrogen and hospital. In addition, while Saturn can not endure life, we have good authority that some of their 50+ moons could. Smith Collection / Getty Images despite being the butt of all the jokes of space, Uranus is a Ice and a very serious player in the solar system. If you think about Hoth, in the imposition of the contra-attack, this would be the closest next How Uranus may seem if it were habitat. Most of your surface area is composed of iced materials such as water and methane. Because of this, not even a single spacing stood close enough to explore. Marcele / Getty Images like the neighbor before, Neptune is also an ice planet. Currently it has 13 confirmed moons, all of which are named after nymphs and other beings of Greek mythology. It is not very well known about Neptune in comparison with the other planets in the solar system. That said, what we know is that it is the darkest planet of the solar system. Your winds can reach speeds faster than a hunting jet, more than four times the earth is stronger. Alexaldo / Gety Images Pluto is a minor planet dwarf at the end of the solar system. In fact, it is so small that it is smaller than the moon. According to NASA, Pluto is an impressive and fascinating world. Alest with blue sky, high mountains and a heart shaped glacier, also has red snow. If you considers or not pluting part of our main solar system or not, you can not deny your climb back to the top. When scientists said that Pluto could not be considered a real planet, the internet turned. The science can administer the world, but the culture of the meme is not to be counted.
